

Dear members of the FCC,

I am very angry to learn that you are considering rolling back the Do Not Call laws of New Jersey. The people of New Jersey have let it be known very clearly that they appreciate the efforts our NJ legislators have made by creating such stringent regulations. In fact, two out of every three residences in the state have registered on the Do Not Call list. Telemarketers diminish the productivity of our nation's work force as well as disturbing the time that families frequently choose to be together at night - dinnertime. In addition, they bring out the worst in people who eventually, out of frustration, become rude and aggressive in their behavior towards them. I would ask you to consider the voice of the people of this state instead of the campaign contributions of the telemarketing industry when making this decision.

Very truly yours,
Adele M. Beekman
